The benefits of working in the security industry.

The security industry is booming! There has been a huge increase in demand as businesses look for ways to protect their assets, premises and belongings. Which is great for you, because it means that there are more vacancies for security guards and door supervisors. It is currently one of the largest sectors of employment in the UK, making it a fantastic option for a long-term career, and can offer a well-paid profession to help you to secure your future.

So why is it such a great industry to work in?

Flexibility

There are many options as to what your working hours could look like, with employment options ranging from casual hours for a more flexible working pattern, to fixed regular hours for those who want a more permanent schedule.

Great career prospects

As the technological world advances in surveillance and security, the need for more qualified security personnel is increasing. The options to progress your career are vast, and its versatility means it can suit most people's strengths in one way or another. You may enjoy being with people in a more public-facing role, or your skills may lend themselves more to back-office activities, such as surveillance or night shift work.

It's no desk job

Even on the surveillance front, it can be a physically engaging job with tasks such as patrolling or investigation duties. It can be a physically demanding job, which is great for people who don't like to sit still all day. A career in the security industry lets you choose a role that doesn't see you tied to a desk; you'll certainly be getting your steps up!

Feel good factor

The safety of the people or the things you're charged with protecting is what the job is about. It can give you a huge sense of achievement and satisfaction that you're able to give people that feeling of security through your work. If you're passionate about the safety of others, then it can be a truly fulfilling career.

What job roles can you look at in the security industry?

The variety of roles is what makes a job in security an attractive prospect, and a great career choice. Work can include:

- Door Supervisor
- Patrol Officer
- Security Officer
- CCTV Operator
- Retail Security
- Nightclub/Doorman
- Revenue Protection
- Static Security Guard
- Control Room Officer
- Security Concierge
- Bodyguard
- VIP Security
